Background

- On February 23, 2018, the Chesterfield County School Board announced the creation of a School Safety Task Force to evaluate current protocols and best practices that ensure the school division is providing a safe, supportive and nurturing learning environment for all students, staff and administrators.
- It was announced that Virginia Secretary of Public Safety and Homeland Security Brian Moran and former Virginia Secretary of Education Laura Fornash, both residents of Chesterfield County and parents of students at Chesterfield County Public Schools would serve as the co-chairs of the School Safety Task Force.
- Prior to the recent tragedy in Florida, two Chesterfield School Board members, Midlothian representative Dr. Javaid Siddiqi, former Virginia Secretary of Education, and Clover Hill representative Dianne Smith, a gubernatorial appointee in 2013 to the governor's School Safety Task Force, were actively looking into the creation of a task force.

SCHOOL SAFETY TASK FORCE

Background

- The School Board accepted applications from community members to serve on the School Safety Task Force. After receiving more than 200 applications, members were appointed from each of the county's five magisterial districts and included parents, teachers, staff members, students and other community members.

Next Steps

- The final report from the School Safety Task Force was formally presented to the Chesterfield County School Board on January 8, 2019.
- The report has been sent to the Governor of Virginia, Speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates, Chesterfield legislative delegation, Chesterfield County Board of Supervisors, Virginia Secretary of Education, and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Next Steps

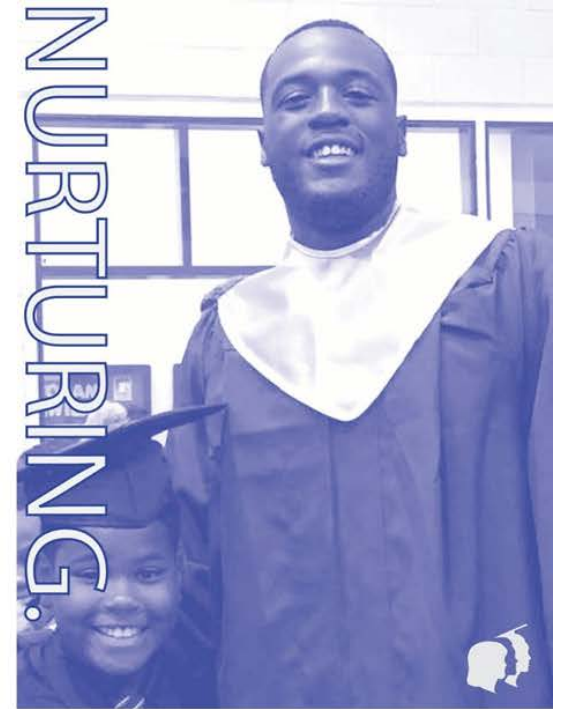

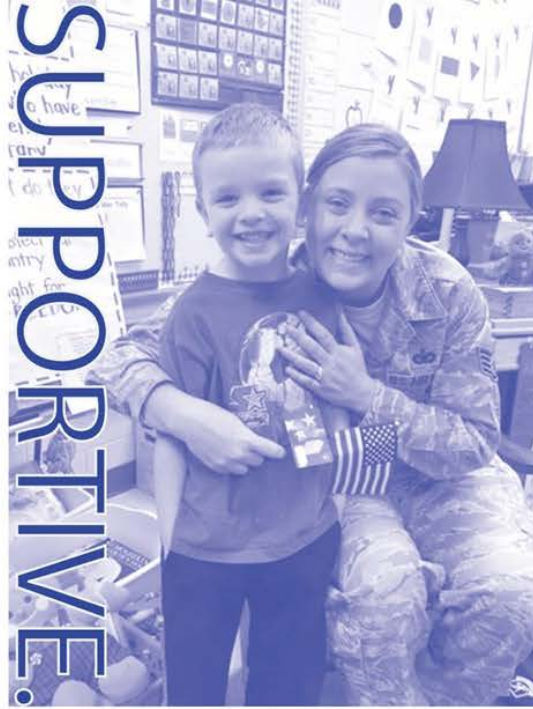

- The School Board will determine the appropriate implementation of the specific recommendations.
- As such, the School Safety Task Force strongly encourages the School Board to prioritize implementation for:
 - Strategies that can be immediately endorsed/implemented
 - Strategies that might include a budgetary impact (and determine if the financial cost could be part of the upcoming budget process or if it should be phased in)
 - Strategies that might be included in the School Board's legislative program
 - Strategies that might be implemented over time"
- The School Safety Task Force recommends the Chesterfield School Board receive regular updates from staff regarding progress toward implementation of the recommendations.
